WATER CO. OFFERS CITY LOWER RATE

PROPOSITION SUBMITTED TO CITY COUNCIL

ssue Probably Will Be Taken Up at Next Wednesday's Meeting.

Circleville will get a lower wa-er rate.

This seemed assured Wednesday vhen John C Goeller, Sr, presi-ent of council, announced that he ad received a letter from the Ohio Water Service Co. offering a educed rate

Mr. Goeller said the proposal no oubt would be acted upon by council at its next regular meet-ng, Sept. 19.

He declined to give the figures ubmitted by the water company. "However, the company has nade a proposition for the city to onsider," said Mr. Goeller. "It is p to council to decide whether it s satisfactory or not. All I care o say now is that we have been ffered a reduced rate."

Mr. Goeller said he had received nly one communication from the ompany concerning the rate since C Elliott, vice president of the ompany, appeared before council ugust 2 and asked for more time o submit figures on the local sit-ation. At the time Mr. Elliott leaded for time to analyze fig-res applying to Circleville. He xplained that his company, which ook over the local system only a ew months ago, had not had suf-cient time to segregate the costs nd earnings of the local plant.

The company's offer, as ad-ressed to Mr. Goeller, was sign-d by Mr. Elliott.

During the controversy over ircleville's water rate the Ohio ublic utilities commission an-ounced that it stood ready to re-iew the situation.

Pickaway-Co Budget Commission Announces Tax Reductions

CORPORATION, SCHOOLS AND TWP. RATE CUT

City Taxes Reduced From $18.20 To $17.20—Other Figures Given Soon.

The Pickaway Co budget commission, composed of M. B Trout, treasurer, E. A. Brown, prosecuting attorney and Bryce Briggs, auditor, met Wednesday in the county auditor's office and fixed the 1928 tax rate for Circleville-twp at $10.80 as compared with $11.60 of last year, and the Circleville School District tax rate at $12 00 as compared to $12 90 of last year.

The rate fixed for Circleville Corporation was $17.20 as compared to $18.20 last year.

So far there has been a saving to the tax payers in each of these ing districts of 8-10 of one mill, which means approximately $1 less per $1.000.

Other tax rates will be announced within a few days. Several days ago Auditor Briggs predicted a general revision downward throughout the county.

CANNING SEASON NEARING CLOSE

Few Plants to Operate After This Week—Pack Far Below Normal.

The canning season in Pickaway-co. is rapidly drawing to a close. The factories are working but a few hours each day and will probably wind up the season next week Not only does this condition prevail in this immediate section but it is also found in other parts of the state.

The sweet corn pack for this year is reported as many million cases below the average of last year.

Much of the corn that looked exceptionally good from a distance showed that the stalks are large and healthy but had produced no ear of corn. While the crop is short, the quality, in most cases, has been good, the ears being large and well filled.

Market conditions are the worst known in years, reports show. Many of the packers are selling at the market price rather than take a chance of carrying over for a rising market that might not come, as was the case last year.

Some advance the reason that many people have cut down on living expenses.

COLE WILL AID HERBERT HOOVER

FINDLAY, O., Sept. 12— Col. Ralph D. Cole, who was active in the fight for Senator Willis for the Republican presidential nomination, will stump for the Hoover-Curtis ticket in October. Col. Cole was to have nominated Senator Willis at Kansas City. After the senator's death he became one of the leaders of Anti-Hoover faction.

NEARLY 2,000 EXPECTED AT MASONIC MEETING

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12 — Nearly 2,000 Blue Lodge Masons of Ohio are expected to be in Columbus Oct. 16 to 18 for the annual meeting of the grand lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Ohio.

Representatives of 684 lodges throughout the state, with a membership of 207,000 will be present. Meetings will be held at the Masonic temple, with headquarters at the Neil House.

Masonic officials believe that if the convention can be handled successfully this year that it may meet in Columbus annually.

HEADQUARTERS TO BE SELECTED SOON

The Democratic executive committee has appointed Harry J. Briggs, C. A Leist and W L Henn to act as a committee in selecting rooms for Democratic headquarters.

It is understood several suitable rooms are available and it is expected that a decision will be reached this week.

WOMAN HURT BY LOCAL MAN'S CAR

Mrs. Sadie Lewis, Columbus, suffered lacerations and bruises about the body Tuesday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile driven by Hillard Gehres, of Circleville, near her home on S. High-st.

Gehres told Chief Deputy Sheriff Harry Paul of Franklin-co. that she stepped in front of his car. He was absolved of blame.

The woman was taken to a hospital, where her condition was reported not serious.

PROBLEM OF RHINELAND IS ARGUED AGAIN

Chancellor of Germany Says He Did Not Intend To Oppose France.

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—A conference based on discussion of evacuation of the Rhineland will be resumed Thursday—with the leading powers participating — and there were indications today that the entire matter of evacuation would be examined from a technical, geographical and juridicial standpoint.

Aristide Briand, the French foreign minister, has delayed his departure for Paris so that he may attend the Thursday conference.

The entire international situation, which momentarily had become delicate through Briand's recent blunt answer to Chancellor Mueller on disarmament, appeared improved today and authoritative reports said that in yesterday's discussion of evacuation Mueller had not presented any concrete evacuation proposal.

Although Japan has been invited to participate in these conferences, this was said to be merely a gesture of good will.

Chancellor Mueller last night gave a statement to newspapermen replying to some of the terms of Briand's recent speech, and indicated that Franco-German relations still were unruffled and that the evacuation negotiations were proceedings satisfactorily.

"I raised the question of disarmament in the assembly solely for the purpose of helping the league to a solution of the problem," he said. "The criticism was moderate and intended to be constructive

"I think it likewise is impossible to reproach us for rebuilding the merchant marine which is an essential element to the world's commercial development We have the fullest intention to continue collaboration with the league's commissions for solving the problem of disarmament.

The Rev Franklin McElfresh arrived home Tuesday from Springfield where he attended and participated in the Methodist Ohio conference. Half the state of Ohio is included in this conference.

COOLIDGES BACK AFTER VACATION

Met In Washington By Hoover and Several Members of Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Sept 12—President and Mrs Coolidge returned to Washington today from Brule, Wis, where they spent their summer vacation.

Among those at Union Station to meet them when their train arrived at 8.30 a.m. were Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee: Secetary of State Kellogg, Secretary of War Davis, Postmaster General New Attorney General Sargent, Secretary of Navy Wilbur and Dr Joel T. Boone, Coolidge's physician.

Kellogg and Hoover were accompanied by their wives

The greeting party was let through ropes which kept out several hundred spectators, and walked through the station gates to the Coolidge private car. There the president, as silent as usual, shook hands with them He made no comment to any of the cabinet heads or to Hoover.

All followed the Coolidges through the station to a waiting limousine, which took the president and first lady to the White House. Motion picture photographers snapped the party outside the station

19 PRISONERS IN JAIL GET HAIR CUT

Once a month the prisoners at the county jail have their hair cut by a Circleville barber.

Tuesday night 19 prisoners were given the once over. One woman prisoner had her hair bobbed as the fad of letting it grow out has not yet hit the jail.

The eighteen men are lined up on benches, as they have no chair, and the barber cuts the heads to suit. They have the privilege of picking any style haircut they like.

HILLSBORO, O., Sept. 12.—Little change was reported here today in the condition of Col. D O Morrow, seriously ill here since he suffered a stroke of paralysis recently. Morrow was one of the late Senator Joseph B Foraker's lieutenants and is a former chairman of the Republican state central committee.

300 ARRESTED, SPANISH PLOT ENDS QUICKLY

Dictator De Rivera Says Military Had No Part In Provincial Uprising.

MADRID, Sept. 12 — The plot to overthrow the dictatorship of Primo De Rivera—discovery of which led to more than 300 arrests — apparently had been calmed today without force of arms.

Early this morning from the provinces where the uprising plans centered— Catalonia, Valencia, Austrias, Andalusia —there was no report of disturbances and Gen. De Rivera said the plot had failed principally because it was a civilian revolt which had little or no contract with the military of the nation.

Scores of prominent anti-government men were arrested beginning Monday night when the minister of the interior signed the order for the arrests and government officers started wholesale roundups through the territories where the plotters resided.

The plot was intended to have taken full effect Thursday in Madrid, according to government disclosures, when there is to be a great mass meeting to honor the dictator. Fully 150,000 persons are expected to attend this meeting and the plotters had chosen that to make their attempt to overthrow the control that De Rivera has built up since he first came into power in Spain in 1922

De Rivera was not in Madrid when the discovery was made but came here from San Sebastian yesterday and told the cabinet that the uprising had failed, that the army had no part in the plot program and that he had full confidence in the support and solidarity of the military.

REPUBLICANS WIN MAINE BY 85,000 VOTES

Gov. Weeks Nominated For Third Term in Vermont—"Old Guard" Licked.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12—The Republican majority in Maine's "barometric" state election neared the 85,000 mark as late returns from Monday's balloting filtered in today.

With 616 out of 633 precincts accounted for, William Tudor Gardiner, Republican, had a margin of 84,891 votes over Edward C. Moran, Jr., Democrat in the gubernatorial race.

The same number of precincts gave Senator Frederick Hale, Republican, a majority to 80,000 votes over Herbert Holmes, Democrat, in the senatorial contest.

Carrying every city in the state except the Democratic strongholds, Lewiston and Biddeford, the Republicans rolled up a majority which easily was the greatest in Maine's history.

WEEKS RENOMINATED

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 12—On the basis of returns from more than two-thirds of the state in yesterday's primary, the renomination of Governor John E. Weeks, Republican, seemed assured.

Returns from all but 70 of Vermont's 248 precincts gave Weeks 20,945 and his opponent, Mayor Edward H. Deavitt of Montpelier, Republican, 12,406.

As the Republican nomination in Vermont is tantamount to election, Week's apparent victory meant the casting aside of two political traditions.

For many years it has been an unwritten law that no Vermont governor shall serve more than a single two-year term. This rule would be broken with Weeks renominated.

This was the only contest in the primary.

"OLD GUARD" LOSES

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 12.—Despite support of Gov. Huntley N. Spaulding, U. S. Senator George H. Moses and other "old guard" Republicans, Ora A. Brown was defeated by Charles W. Tobey for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in yesterday's primary election.

With all but 87 of the state's 294 towns and wards accounted for, Tobey led with 19,026 votes to Brown's 15,923. Brown conceded his opponent's nomination.

Returns from about two-thirds of the state indicated that Eaton D. Sargent won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination over Charles W. Ward by a margin of almost 3 to 1.

A comparatively light vote was cast.

JOHN COOLIDGE GETS ON NEW JOB EARLY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 12.—John Coolidge is taking no chances of being late for work.

He arrived at his New Haven railroad job today at 8:10 a. m.—20 minutes early. Yesterday he was 10 minutes ahead of time.

As yesterday, the president's son walked to work from the Yale graduates' club, where he is a temporary guest, accompanied by William Wood, secret service man.

A crowd watched him enter the yellow building, road headquarters Newspapermen and photographers who flocked here yesterday had dwindled to a persistent handful. John smiled and hurried in.

ELEVATOR BURNED

WILMINGTON, O., Sept. 12—Fire caused by defective wiring destroyed the Linkhart elevator at Sabina near here in Clinton-co. early today resulting in loss of more than $15,000. The building was stocked with new oats, feed and flour.

M'MILLAN IS FIRST OFF FOR LOS ANGELES

Heavy Fog Delays Start From Roosevelt Field For Several Hours.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The most spectacular airplane race ever undertaken began from this flying field today when Clifford E. McMillin took off for Los Angeles in his Stinson-Detroiter monoplane.

McMillin was the first to take the air of nine pilots whose planes were lined up for the nonstop trans-continental flight. He left the field at 11:25 a.m.

The pilot, from Syracuse, N. Y., carried as navigator, C. A. Herrick, of Hempstead, L. I.

After several hours delay because of a fog here and reports of unfavorable weather out over the country, McMillin brought his big red monoplane to the runway at 10:45 a. m. and began tuning it up for the flight.

McMillin and Herrick carried 14 sandwiches, two bottles of coffee, two of water, one of lemonade and a half dozen chocolate bars. They hoped to span the continent within 24 hours. Lindbergh's time on his recent flight to New York was just short of 20 hours.

As soon as the first plane had disappeared in the west Oliver Le Boutellier taxied the Bellanca monoplane North Star into position at the head of the runway. The plane is owned by Mrs. James A. Stillman, but the former banker's wife said she would not accompany it in the race. George King took his place beside Le Boutellier as relief pilot.

Only two airplanes in the brilliant history of aviation in recent years, have succeeded in flying from coast to coast without a stop. Lieutenants Oakley Kelly and John A. MacReady accomplished the flight from Mitchell field, L. I., in 1923 and this summer Arthur Goebel flew here from Los Angeles.

Last year a race similar to today's was undertaken with fewer entries but no one finished.

At 7 a.m. there was a heavy ground fog which held up the start.

Other weather reports were favorable with the exception of local disturbances in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, race officials said.

Charles A. Levine's monoplane "Columbia," the one in which he and Clarence Chamberlin flew to Germany, was withdrawn when Roger Q. Williams, the pilot, settled his differences with Count Cesare Sabelli and left to fly Sabelli's monoplane to Old Orchard, Me., from where a start will be made on a trans-Atlantic flight.

Early this morning from the provinces where the uprising plans centered— Catalonia, Valencia, Austrias, Andalusia —there was no report of disturbances and Gen. De Rivera said the plot had failed principally because it was a civilian revolt which had little or no contract with the military of the nation.

Scores of prominent anti-government men were arrested beginning Monday night when the minister of the interior signed the order for the arrests and government officers started wholesale roundups through the territories where the plotters resided.

The plot was intended to have taken full effect Thursday in Madrid, according to government disclosures, when there is to be a great mass meeting to honor the dictator. Fully 150,000 persons are expected to attend this meeting and the plotters had chosen that to make their attempt to overthrow the control that De Rivera has built up since he first came into power in Spain in 1923.

De Rivera was not in Madrid when the discovery was made but came here from San Sebastian yesterday and told the cabinet that the uprising had failed, that the army had no part in the plot program and that he had full confidence in the support and solidarity of the military.

REPUBLICANS WIN MAINE BY 85,000 VOTES

Gov. Weeks Nominated For Third Term in Vermont—"Old Guard" Licked.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12—The Republican majority in Maine's "barometric" state election neared the 85,000 mark as late returns from Monday's balloting filtered in today.

With 616 out of 633 precincts accounted for, William Tudor Gardiner, Republican, had a margin of 84,891 votes over Edward C. Moran, Jr., Democrat in the gubernatorial race.

The same number of precincts gave Senator Frederick Hale, Republican, a majority to 80,000 votes over Herbert Holmes, Democrat, in the senatorial contest.

Carrying every city in the state except the Democratic strongholds, Lewiston and Biddeford, the Republicans rolled up a majority which easily was the greatest in Maine's history.

WEEKS RENOMINATED

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 12—On the basis of returns from more than two-thirds of the state in yesterday's primary, the renomination of Governor John E. Weeks, Republican, seemed assured.

Returns from all but 70 of Vermont's 248 precincts gave Weeks 20,945 and his opponent, Mayor Edward H. Deavitt of Montpelier, Republican, 12,406.

As the Republican nomination in Vermont is tantamount to election, Week's apparent victory meant the casting aside of two political traditions.

For many years it has been an unwritten law that no Vermont governor shall serve more than a single two-year term. This rule would be broken with Weeks renominated.

This was the only contest in the primary.

"OLD GUARD" LOSES

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 12.—Despite support of Gov. Huntley N. Spaulding, U. S. Senator George H. Moses and other "old guard" Republicans, Ora A. Brown was defeated by Charles W. Tobey for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in yesterday's primary election.

With all but 87 of the state's 294 towns and wards accounted for, Tobey led with 19,026 votes to Brown's 15,923. Brown conceded his opponent's nomination.

Returns from about two-thirds of the state indicated that Eaton D. Sargent won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination over Charles W. Ward by a margin of almost 3 to 1.

A comparatively light vote was cast.

JOHN COOLIDGE GETS ON NEW JOB EARLY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 12.—John Coolidge is taking no chances of being late for work.

He arrived at his New Haven railroad job today at 8:10 a. m.—20 minutes early. Yesterday he was 10 minutes ahead of time.

As yesterday, the president's son walked to work from the Yale graduates' club, where he is a temporary guest, accompanied by William Wood, secret service man.

A crowd watched him enter the yellow building, road headquarters. Newspapermen and photographers who flocked here yesterday had dwindled to a persistent handful. John smiled and hurried in.

ELEVATOR BURNED

WILMINGTON, O., Sept. 12.—Fire caused by defective wiring destroyed the Linkhart elevator at Sabina near here in Clinton-co. early today resulting in loss of more than $15,000. The building was stocked with new oats, feed and flour.

M'MILLAN IS FIRST OFF FOR LOS ANGELES

Heavy Fog Delays Start From Roosevelt Field For Several Hours.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The most spectacular airplane race ever undertaken began from this flying field today when Clifford E. McMillin took off for Los Angeles in his Stinson-Detroiter monoplane.

McMillin was the first to take the air of nine pilots whose planes were lined up for the nonstop trans-continental flight. He left the field at 11:25 a.m.

The pilot, from Syracuse, N. Y., carried as navigator, C. A. Herrick, of Hempstead, L. I.

After several hours delay because of a fog here and reports of unfavorable weather out over the country, McMillin brought his big red monoplane to the runway at 10:45 a. m. and began tuning it up for the flight.

McMillin and Herrick carried 14 sandwiches, two bottles of coffee, two of water, one of lemonade and a half dozen chocolate bars. They hoped to span the continent within 24 hours. Goebel's time on his recent flight to New York was just short of 20 hours.

As soon as the first plane had disappeared in the west Oliver Le Boutellier taxied the Bellanca monoplane North Star into position at the head of the runway. The plane is owned by Mrs. James A. Stillman, but the former banker's wife said she would not accompany it in the race. George King took his place beside Le-Boutellier as relief pilot.

Only two airplanes in the brilliant history of aviation in recent years, have succeeded in flying from coast to coast without a stop. Lieutenants Oakley Kelly and John A. MacReady accomplished the flight from Mitchell field, L. I., in 1923 and this summer Arthur Goebel flew here from Los Angeles.

Last year a race similar to today's was undertaken with fewer entries but no one finished.

At 7 a.m. there was a heavy ground fog which held up the start.

Other weather reports were favorable with the exception of local disturbances in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, race officials said.

Charles A. Levine's monoplane "Columbia," the one in which he and Clarence Chamberlin flew to Germany, was withdrawn when Roger Q. Williams, the pilot, settled his differences with Count Cesare Sabelli and left to fly Sabelli's monoplane to Old Orchard, Me., from where a start will be made on a trans-Atlantic flight.

Macks Two and One-Half Games From To

RUTH'S HOMER ABOUT CINCHES YANK'S FLAG

Waite Hoyt and Earnshaw Scheduled To Wind Up Battle Today.

NEW YORK, Sept 12 —Gray skies today indicated that the final game of the important series between the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics would be before a considerably smaller crowd than that which saw the Sunday double header and the dramatic game yesterday.

Even at that the three games already played—which may have clinched the pennant for the Yankees— was the greatest two days' crowd in baseball history, 136,725 persons watching the Yankees win three games. The crowd yesterday was 51,000 as compared with an ordinary 18,000 Tuesday attendance.

And how those 51,000 yesterday cut loose when Babe Ruth won the game with a great homer in the eighth inning!

Lanky Bob Grove, Philadelphia's most consistent winning pitcher, had appeared invincible. He had won his last 14 starts.

For six innings he did not permit a Yankee run.

Then in the eighth the Yankees tied the score. With Gehric on base Ruth came up. He had not hit yet in the game. When he did hit Bing Miller, the Athletics right fielder, knew what had happened. He simply turned and watched the ball sail into the right field bleachers, probably with the thought that that blow and Meusel's home run Sunday had deprived him of world series money.

Waite Hoyt for the Yankees and George Earnshaw for the "A's" probably will be the pitching selections today. Even should the Athletics win the final game, New York will start on its final western road trip tomorrow with a game and a half lead.

Fourteen games will remain to be played.

Golf triumphs no longer are an event in the life of Robert T. Jones, Jr.—it's a habit with the young golfing-lawyer of Atlanta, Ga.

Jones, most recent triumph was at Wheaton, Ill., where he defeated T. P. Perkins, British amateur title-holder 13 up and 12 to play in the Walker Cup matches between the United States and Great Britain. As captain of the United States team, Jones scored the most overwhelming victory over the British amateur ever gained in a Walker Cup competition. The previous record was 12 up and 11, by which Jones defeated Cyril Tolley of St. Andrews in 1926.

Paired with "Chick" Evans, Jones further aided the cause of the American team, by winning over Hezlet and Hope 5 and 3. The American team was victorious in 11 of 12 matches, another record in Walker Cup play.

Probably the most remarkable score ever turned in for any series of play was made by "The Atlanta Wizard" in the practice rounds prior to the Walker Cup matches.

Played Havoc With Par

Jones' score of 293 for 54 holes on a par 71 course may be termed a new golfing standard. His first record-breaking round was scored in the morning with a 68. He then proceeded to better that mark with a 67, and came back in the afternoon to turn in a card of 68. His average was 67 2-3 strokes for three rounds on a par 71 course.

When Jones won his third national amateur title last year at Minikahda he played 154 holes in ten under par figures.

The match between Bobbie Jones and Johnny Farrell for the national open championship of 192 has been referred to as the greatest golf duel held over American turf. There has never been another golf competition where the drama held its place so long and the tide of battle swung back and forth with such startling rapidity. Jones reached the last two holes trailing by a stroke and against these odds, finished with two birdies. On the final [illegible] Farrell stepped up to [illegible] putt and sent the ball [illegible] from the view of the [illegible]

In the [illegible] play-off Farrell finished with a 143 against 144 for Jones, a difference of one stroke in 108 holes of golf.

Won in 1924

Jones [illegible] won the amateur crown over the Merion Cricket club course in 1924. George Von Elm was his opponent on this occasion. The next year Jones repeated as amateur champion by winning over his fellow townsman, Watts Gunn at the Oakmont Country club. In 1925 Jones was beaten in the finals by George Von Elm. Undaunted Jones came back last year to win his third title in four years, by defeating Evans.

The triumphs of the Atlanta star in the National Open have been almost as impressive. He won the title in 1923 after a play-off with Bobby Cruickshank. In 1924 Jones was runner-up, finishing second to Cyril Walker. Again in 1925, Jones was runner-up after a 36 holes play-off with Willie McFarlane. Jones won the title in 1926 and this year was defeated in the play-off by Farrell.

YESTERDAY'S HERO—Babe Ruth, New York Yankee outfielder, whose forty-ninth home run of the season with Lou Gehrig on base in the eighth inning, gave the Yankees a 5 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Connie Mack started Lefty Grove, ace of the Athletic staff, on the mound against the Yankees. Grove previously had turned in his fourteenth consecutive victory and his 22 for the season. The A's took the lead in the first inning, scoring two runs and added another in the fourth. New York scored a run in the seventh and added four in the eighth on a walk, an error by Dykes, a wild pitch, Gehrig's single and a home run by Ruth.

—o—

The New York Giants advanced to within two and one-half games of the St. Louis Cardinals by winning a double-header from the Boston Braves, 11 to 6 and 7 to 6. Jack Scott hurled for the Giants in the opening game and Carl Hubbel started the second, giving way to Larry Benton when the Braves threatened in the ninth. In this period Benton fanned Hornsby with the tying run on second base.

—o—

Pittsburgh closed its season in Chicago by taking a 9 to 3 defeat at the hands of the Chicago Cubs. Carmen Hill was on the mound for Pittsburgh, but was pounded hard for four runs and five hits with one out in the first inning. Pat Malone was the star at bat for Chicago, driving in four runs and hitting safely twice.

—o—

A double play completed in the eighth inning in the game between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals raised the total for the Reds for the season to 175 and broke the National league double play record made by the Chicago Cubs in 1926. This did not prevent the Cardinals from winning the game, 6 to 3, however. Andy High, St. Louis infielder, hit a home run in the first inning.

—o—

The Brooklyn Robins and the Philadelphia Phillies split their second double-header in two days. The Robins won the first, 7 to 2, and the Phillies won the second, 4 to 3. Leach hit a home run in the ninth, scoring Whitney to give the Phillies the decision. Dazzy Vance relieved Moss in this frame and hurled two balls and was credited with the loss.

—o—

The St. Louis Browns enjoyed a slugfest, winning from the Cleveland Indians, 16 to 6.

—o—

The Detroit Tigers won from the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 6.

Team Light But Looks Well-Balanced In First Real Practice of Season.

The Circleville high school football squad had its first taste of scrimmage this year, when, on Tuesday night, it practiced with the alumni. The team is very light but looks as though it would be well-balanced.

On the first day of practice, 33 men answered the roll call, but now Coach Guthrie must play to fill out the second team. Some of the boys get bumped and quit.

In the scrimmage Tuesday night, Grant at halfback made a good showing. Wallace and Barnhill were on their toes and one could easily tell they had the experience which lots of the other One of the players was o nthe line line for the first time and had never held a football until last Monday evening.

STRAW HAT DOOM SET FOR SEPT. 15

But You May Wear It Until Christmas—If You Have Courage.

The straw hat this year seems doomed to a premature death, although lots of people with real courage will continue to wear them as long as they please, a defiance of fashion's dictates. Saturday, September 15, is the day set by dictatorial and tyrannical fashion as the last day for the straw headpiece, and the wise folks will adopt the felt hat on that day.

Cows won't eat straw hats; most straw hats look bad when cleaned after a winter in dry dock; they can't be dyed for winter wear, nor can the thriftiest wife trim any of them over to use as a bonnet next spring—so, fashion says you might as well throw them away. Winter headgear is already making its appearance on the streets and in the shop windows—but that fact needn't deter anyone from wearing a straw hat as long as he likes.

Don't blame the weather man for the conspiracy against the life of the straw hat. Although the weather man has been providing cool, fall weather, the "style dictactors" have decreed a shorter season for the "summer lids."

Paris merchants this year have received their line of fall and winter headdress earlier than usual to meet the command of the "fashion dictators," and a rush on the hat stores is anticipated.

Still, there is no law on the statute books of Ohio which compels a man to throw away his straw hat, and if he so desires, he can wear it until the snow falls, or longer, if he has the courage to do so.

Don't blame the weather man for the conspiracy against the life of the straw hat. Although the weather man has been providing cool, fall weather, the "style dictactors" have decreed a shorter season for the "summer lids."

Paris merchants this year have received their line of fall and winter headdress earlier than usual to meet the command of the "fashion dictators," and a rush on the hat stores is anticipated.

Still, there is no law on the statute books of Ohio which compels a man to throw away his straw hat, and if he so desires, he can wear it until the snow falls, or longer, if he has the courage to do so.

BABE RUTH BEHIND

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Babe Ruth today is four days behind his 1927 home-run record.

His 49th of the season was hit Tuesday in the eighth inning of the game between the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics. Gehrig was on base and Lefty Grove was pitching for the Athletics. Last season, home run No. 49 came on Sept. 7.

REDS SET RECORD

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—By making a double play, Critz to Kelly, in the eighth inning of the game between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday, the Cincinnati Reds set a new National league double play record at 175. The previous National league double play record was 174 and was made by the Chicago Cubs in 1926.

Golf triumphs no longer are an event in the life of Robert T. Jones, Jr.—it's a habit with the young golfing-lawyer of Atlanta, Ga.

Jones, most recent triumph was at Wheaton, Ill., where he defeated T. P. Perkins, British amateur title-holder 13 up and 12 to play in the Walker Cup matches between the United States and Great Britain. As captain of the United States team, Jones scored the most overwhelming victory over the British amateur ever gained in a Walker Cup competition. The previous record was 12 up and 11, by which Jones defeated Cyril Tolley of St. Andrews in 1926.

Paired with "Chick" Evans, Jones further aided the cause of the American team, by winning over Hezlet and Hope 5 and 3. The American team was victorious in 11 of 12 matches, another record in Walker Cup play.

Probably the most remarkable score ever turned in for any series of play was made by "The Atlanta Wizard" in the practice rounds prior to the Walker Cup matches.

Played Havoc With Par

Jones' score of 203 for 54 holes on a par 71 course may be termed a new golfing standard. His first record-breaking round was scored in the morning with a 68. He then proceeded to better that mark with a 67, and came back in the afternoon to turn in a card of 68. His average was 67 2-3 strokes for three rounds on a par 71 course.

When Jones won his third national amateur title last year at Minikahda he played 154 holes in ten under par figures.

The match between Bobbie Jones and Johnny Farrell for the national open championship of 192 has been referred to as the greatest golf duel held over American turf. There has never been another golf competition where the drama held its place so long and the tide of battle swung back and forth with such startling rapidity. Jones reached the last two holes trailing by a stroke and against these odds, finished with two birdies. On the final hole Johnny Farrell stepped up to a seven-foot putt and sent the ball spinning from the view of the crowd.

In the 2 play-off Farrell finished with a 143 against 144 for Jones, a difference of one stroke in 108 holes of golf.

First Won in 1924

Jones first won the amateur crown over the Merion Cricket club course in 1924. George Von Elm was his opponent on this occasion. The next year Jones repeated as amateur champion by winning over his fellow townsman, Watts Gunn at the Oakmont Country club. In 1925 Jones was beaten in the finals by George Von Elm. Undaunted Jones came back last year to win his third title in four years, by defeating Evans.

The triumphs of the Atlanta star in the National Open have been almost as impressive. He won the title in 1923 after a play-off with Bobby Cruickshank. In 1924 Jones was runner-up, finishing second to Cyril Walker. Again in 1925, Jones was runner-up after a 36 holes play-off with Willie McFarlane. Jones won the title in 1926 and this year was defeated in the play-off by Farrell.

Baseball

YESTERDAY'S HERO — Babe Ruth, New York Yankee outfielder, whose forty-ninth home run of the season with Lou Gehrig on base in the eighth inning, gave the Yankees a 5 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Connie Mack started Lefty Grove, ace of the Athletic staff, on the mound against the Yankees. Grove previously had turned in his fourteenth consecutive victory and his 22 for the season. The A's took the lead in the first inning, scoring two runs and added another in the fourth. New York scored a run in the seventh and added four in the eighth on a walk, an error by Dykes, a wild pitch, Gehrig's single and a home run by Ruth.

—|o|—

The New York Giants advanced to within two and one-half games of the St. Louis Cardinals by winning a double-header from the Boston Braves, 11 to 6 and 7 to 6. Jack Scott hurled for the Giants in the opening game and Carl Hubbel started the second, giving way to Larry Benton when the Braves threatened in the ninth. In this period, Benton fanned Hornsby with the tying run on second base.

—|o|—

Pittsburgh closed its season in Chicago by taking a 9 to 3 defeat at the hands of the Chicago Cubs. Carmen Hill was on the mound for Pittsburgh, but was pounded hard for four runs and five hits with one out in the first inning. Pat Malone was the star at bat for Chicago, driving in four runs and hitting safely twice.

—|o|—

A double play completed in the eighth inning in the game between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals raised the total for the Reds for the season to 175 and broke the National league double play record made by the Chicago Cubs in 1926. This did not prevent the Cardinals from winning the game, 6 to 3, however. Andy High, St. Louis infielder, hit a home run in the first inning.

—|o|—

The Brooklyn Robins and the Philadelphia Phillies split their second double-header in two days. The Robins won the first, 7 to 2, and the Phillies won the second, 4 to 3. Leach hit a home run in the ninth, scoring Whitney to give the Phillies the decision. Dazzy Vance relieved Moss in this frame and hurled two balls and was credited with the loss.

—|o|—

The St. Louis Browns enjoyed a slugfest, winning from the Cleveland Indians, 16 to 6.

—|o|—

The Detroit Tigers won from the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 6.

SCIENTISTS STUDY MYSTERY OF LIFE

"Day Nearer When Physiologist Will Be Able to Create Life," Says One.

GLASGOW, Sept. 12 — The mystery of life occupied the attention of the world's foremost scientists today.

Discoveries were announced to the British Association for the Advancement of Science, in session here, which hinted that several scientists believed they had lifted a corner of the curtain and caught a glimpse of the processes that make an animal different from a stone.

The most startling announcement was the statement of Prof. Frederick G. Donnan, of London, that he believed, "The day was nearer when the physiologist will be able to create life."

The statement caused a furore. It was made to the press in amplification of last night's lecture in which Donnan explained what he regarded as revolutionary discoveries about life made by Prof. Archibald Vivian Hill, noted physiologist.

FULL SKIRTS WILL BE FASHIONABLE THIS FALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—Full skirts, tight at the hips and having uneven hem lines, will be the best style for this fall, Miss Marion Stehlik, director of the lace exposition and style show said.

"The women of today seeks versatility of expression in fashion," she said. "But she is not content with this alone. She demands as well that styles express poise and character, nevertheless, she is till concious that her chief appeal must always be feminity.

The best colors for fall are all shades of blue, beige for sports wear, brown for street wear, and touches of metal for daytime wear, she said.

REPUBLICANS HAVE EFFICIENCY SURVEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—An efficiency survey of the Republican campaign in each of the 3,071 counties in the United States was ordered today by Chairman Work of the Republican national committee.

Work sent instructions to all state chairmen to collect reports from each county chairman concerning the formation of campaign organizations, predictions as to the result, the status of finances and other comment pertinent to the progress of the campaign. The survey was determined upon to ascertain precisely the way the campaign is progressing.

KONJOLA ENDED 11 YEARS AWFUL NEURITIS PAINS

Another Man Says New Medicine Restored His Health In Amazing Short Time.

MR. PAUL ERBE.

"Konjola restored my health after eleven years suffering from neuritis and stomach trouble. It is a pleasure to indorse such a medicine," said Mr. Paul Erbe, [illegible] South Fifth Street, Columbus. [illegible]

"Because of dampness where I worked, I contracted neuritis and I often thought that I would not be able to stand the pains any longer. To add to my suffering my stomach became disordered and I always endured awful miseries after meals. My nerves could not stand up under the strain and I was disturbed at the least unusual sound.

"Konjola was recommended to me and I decided to give it a trial. It is a blessing that I did because this medicine soon eliminated the neuritis pains so that I could do my work and get around without suffering the least bit. My stomach, also, is in perfect condition and I really enjoy my meals because the food digests gently and never causes the former ugly symptoms to come over me."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, at Mykrantz drug store and by the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

WOMEN CALL ON HERBERT HOOVER

Candidate Tells Delegation He Is Studying Equal Rights Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—Herbert Hoover told a delegation of 150 members of the National Women's Party at his personal headquarters today that he had ordered close friends to make an investigation to determine what the effect of a proposed equal rights constitutional amendment would be.

The Republican presidential nominee said he sympathized with the theory of abolishing discrimination between all classes in this country. He insisted, however, that inasmuch as there are numerous state laws framed primarily for protection of women, he could not at this time give an endorsement to their constitutional proposal.

Hoover said he found the amendment "necessary to abolish discrimination and preserve equality of opportunity" he would give it "the most favorable consideration" but declined to make a pledge on it until he had completed investigation of the situation.

After the delegation, headed by Miss Gail Laughlin of Portland, Maine, had presented its demands, Hoover speaking extemporaneously in his reception rooms said:

"I have always favored equality of opportunity for women. Any plea based on equality of opportunity for everyone and for the removal of restrictions against any class would have a great appeal to me, as that has long been my ideal of American life."

MOTHER OF NINE ADMITS MURDER

CHICAGO, Sept. 12—While police were investigating the "suicide" of Dominick Finn, 32, Mrs. [illegible] Johnson, mother of nine children, walked into their station and confessed that she shot and killed Finn early today while he was sleeping.

Mrs. Johnson, whose husband died a year and a half ago, told police that Finn was the father of her eight months old twins and that she is expecting another child soon. She said she killed him because he failed to keep a promise to give her $50 yesterday.

Finn's body was found this morning in his home at River [illegible] by his nephew, Francis Finn. He had been shot twice in the head. The nephew reported the death as a suicide.

SCIENCE HAS FOUND CURE FOR CLUB-FOOT

There's No Excuse for Despair Since Medical Profession Has Found Means of Dealing with This Deformity.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A NEW-BORN baby has before him a hard enough life even if he enters the world perfect in form and function. But when he is born with some defect in body or limb, his chances for trouble have been multiplied manifoldly.

DR. COPELAND

Byron, beautiful in face and figure, was ruined in spirit because he had a clubfoot. This particular deformity is not so serious now as it was in Byron's day, because the medical profession has found ways of dealing with it. The poet was embittered by his unrelieved defect, but now there are mechanical or surgical means of cure. In most instances, nowadays, there is no excuse for sadness or sourness of disposition on account of this deformity, sad as it is.

There are various forms of clubfoot, or "talipes" as the doctors call it. "Talipes equinus," as the name indicates, is a deformity where the victim walks on his toes, just as the horse does. The heel is drawn up and the sole of the foot is directed backward.

This position is taken because the muscles at the back of the leg are shortened, so that the heel cannot be brought to the ground. Walking on the balls of the toes produces callouses there.

The most common form of clubfoot is called "talipes varus." In this variety the foot is bent forward. In consequence, the victim walks on the outer side or edge of the foot.

In "talipes valgus" the natural arch of the foot is absent. The foot is bent outward, and the walking is done on the inner side of the foot.

There is a rare form of talipes in which the toes and front of the foot are drawn upward. On this account it is necessary to walk on the heel.

Flat-foot is really a form of talipes. The arch is lost and the foot sags flatly against the floor. This may not be a congenital defect, but may be acquired. During the war it was surprising how many victims of flat-feet were discovered in the draft examinations.

The secret of successful correction of clubfeet is early attention. Manipulation and well directed exercises may correct some cases. Mechanical devices like braces, special shoes, or strapping may relieve. Sometimes operation may be required.

I know what it means to the parent to submit his child to operation or to require him to wear an uncomfortable brace. The easiest way is to go along, hoping the trouble will right itself.

But it is not fair to the child to permit this neglect in youth. The time will come when he will reproach his parents for failure to act in his babyhood.

Submit the clubfoot to the examination of an able specialist in this branch of medicine. When he has advised follow his instructions to the letter. There are very bright prospects that early treatment will overcome the deformity, or, at least, make it so much less that it is no longer noticeable.

SCIENTISTS STUDY MYSTERY OF LIFE

"Day Nearer When Physiologist Will Be Able to Create Life," Says One.

GLASGOW, Sept. 12 — The mystery of life occupied the attention of the world's foremost scientists today.

Discoveries were announced to the British Association for the Advancement of Science, in session here, which hinted that several scientists believed they had lifted a corner of the curtain and caught a glimpse of the processes that make an animal different from a stone.

The most startling announcement was the statement of Prof. Frederick G. Donnan, of London, that he believed, "The day was nearer when the physiologist will be able to create life."

The statement caused a furore. It was made to the press in amplification of last night's lecture in which Donnan explained what he regarded as revolutionary discoveries about life made by Prof. Archibald Vivian Hill, noted physiologist.

FULL SKIRTS WILL BE FASHIONABLE THIS FALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—Full skirts, tight at the hips and having uneven hem lines, will be the best style for this fall, Miss Marion Stehlik, director of the lace exposition and style show said.

"The women of today seeks versatility of expression in fashion," she said. "But she is not content with this alone. She demands as well that styles express poise and character, nevertheless, she is till concious that her chief appeal must always be feminity.

The best colors for fall are all shades of blue, beige for sports wear, brown for street wear, and touches of metal for daytime wear, she said.

REPUBLICANS HAVE EFFICIENCY SURVEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—An efficiency survey of the Republican campaign in each of the 3,071 counties in the United States was ordered today by Chairman Work of the Republican national committee.

Work sent instructions to all state chairmen to collect reports from each county chairman concerning the formation of campaign organizations, predictions as to the result, the status of finances and other comment pertinent to the progress of the campaign.

The survey was determined upon to ascertain precisely the way the campaign is progressing.

KONJOLA ENDED 11 YEARS AWFUL NEURITIS PAINS

Another Man Says New Medicine Restored His Health In Amazing Short Time.

MR. PAUL ERBE.

"Konjola restored my health after eleven years suffering from neuritis and stomach trouble. It is a pleasure to indorse such a medicine," said Mr. Paul Erbe, 7 South Fifth Street, Columbus, O.

"Because of dampness where I work, I contracted neuritis and I often thought that I would not be able to stand the pains any longer.

To add to my suffering my stomach became disordered and I always endured awful miseries after meals. My nerves could not stand up under the strain and I was disturbed at the least unusual sound.

"Konjola was recommended to me and I decided to give it a trial. It is a blessing that I did because this medicine soon eliminated the neuritis pains so that I could do my work and get around without suffering the least bit. My stomach, also, is in perfect condition and I really enjoy my meals because the food digests instantly and never causes the former ugly symptoms to come after me."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, at Mykrantz drug store and by the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

The Nominee Likes a Hot Dog, Too!

Here's Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic standard-bearer, busying himself with a hot dog at one of the open stands at Syracuse State Fair. A liberal helping of mustard, a well-browned roll, plus the succulent filler, and the nominee was ready for another round of speechmaking.

WOMEN CALL ON HERBERT HOOVER

Candidate Tells Delegation He Is Studying Equal Rights Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—Herbert Hoover told a delegation of 150 members of the National Women's Party at his personal headquarters today that he had ordered close friends to make an investigation to determine what the effect of a proposed equal rights constitutional amendment would be.

The Republican presidential nominee said he sympathized with the theory of abolishing discrimination between all classes in this country. He insisted, however, that inasmuch as there are numerous state laws framed primarily for protection of women, he could not at this time give an endorsement to their constitutional proposal.

Hoover said he found the amendment "necessary to abolish discrimination and preserve equality of opportunity" he would give it "the most favorable consideration" but declined to make a pledge on it until he had completed investigation of the situation.

After the delegation, headed by Miss Gail Laughlin of Portland, Maine, had presented its demands, Hoover speaking extemporaneously in his reception rooms said:

"I have always favored equality of opportunity for women. Any plea based on equality of opportunity for everyone and for the removal of restrictions against any class would have a great appeal to me, as that has long been my ideal of American life."

MOTHER OF NINE, ADMITS MURDER

CHICAGO, Sept. 12—While police were investigating the "suicide" of Dominick Finn, 32, Mrs. [illegible] Johnson, mother of nine children, walked into their station and confessed that she shot and killed Finn early today while he was sleeping.

Mrs. Johnson, whose husband died a year and a half ago, told police that Finn was the father of her eight months old twins and that she is expecting another child soon. She said she killed him because he failed to keep a promise to give her $50 yesterday.

Finn's body was found this morning in his home at River [illegible] by his nephew, Francis Finn. He had been shot twice in the head. The nephew reported the death as a suicide.

SCIENCE HAS FOUND CURE FOR CLUB-FOOT

There's No Excuse for Despair Since Medical Profession Has Found Means of Dealing with This Deformity.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A NEW-BORN baby nas before him a hard enough life even if he enters the world perfect in form and function. But when he is born with some defect in body or limb, his chances for trouble have been multiplied manifoldly.

Byron, beautiful in face and figure, was ruined in spirit because he had a clubfoot. This particular deformity is not so serious now as it was in Byron's day, because the medical profession has found ways of dealing with it. The poet was embittered by his unrelieved defect, but now there are mechanical or surgical means of cure. In most instances, nowadays, there is no excuse for sadness or sourness of disposition on account of this deformity, sad as it is.

There are various forms of clubfoot, or "talipes" as the doctors call it. "Talipes equinus," as the name indicates, is a deformity where the victim walks on his toes, just as the horse does. The heel is drawn up and the sole of the foot is directed backward.

This position is taken because the muscles at the back of the leg are shortened so that the heel cannot be brought to the ground. Walking on the balls of the toes produces callouses there.

The most common form of clubfoot is called "talipes varus." In this variety the foot is bent forward. In consequence, the victim walks on the outer side or edge of the foot.

In "talipes valgus" the natural arch of the foot is absent. The foot is bent outward, and the walking is done on the inner side of the foot.

There is a rare form of talipes in which the toes and front of the foot are drawn upward. On this account it is necessary to walk on the heel.

Flat-foot is really a form of talipes. The arch is lost and the foot sags flatly against the floor. This may not be a congenital defect, but may be acquired. During the war it was surprising how many victims of flat-feet were discovered in the draft examinations.

The secret of successful correction of clubfeet is early attention. Manipulation and well directed exercises may correct some cases. Mechanical devices like braces, special shoes, or strapping may relieve. Sometimes operation may be required.

I know what it means to the parent to submit his child to operation or to require him to wear an uncomfortable brace. The easiest way is to go along, hoping the trouble will right itself.

But it is not fair to the child to permit this neglect in youth. The time will come when he will reproach his parents for failure to act in his babyhood.

Submit the clubfoot to the examination of an able specialist in this branch of medicine. When he has advised follow his instructions to the letter. There are very bright prospects that early treatment will overcome the deformity, or, at least, make it so much less that it is no longer noticeable.

Answers to Health Queries

J. L. R. Q.—Has smoking or shaving anything to do with pimples? How can these and blackheads be cleared up?

A.—Shaving is often responsible for blemishes on the face. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Proper diet and regular elimination are the principal factors when looking for treatment.

HOOVER DISLIKES TO WRITE SPEECHES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The way Herbert Hoover looks at it his chief worry of the presidential campaign is, too many speeches to make and not enough time to write them.

For a week he has been hacking and sawing at his Labor address to be delivered next Monday at Newark, and when he went to the Union station to greet President Coolidge this morning he had not yet finished it.

The delay has broken up his plans for a two-day fishing trip the end of the week.

Writing speeches is something new in Roosevelt life. He has never been in a political campaign before and he never before ran for public office.

CAMPAIGN LOG

Mayor James J. Walker of New York announced he would start on a speaking tour for Governor Smith about the first of October and make an intensive campaign continuing up to a few days before the election.

Texas Democrats adopted a dry plank in their state platform but pledged active support to the Democratic national ticket.

Missouri Democrats in state convention adopted a resolution favoring the dry plank of the Democratic national platform.

Charles M. Hays, dry leader, said Governor Smith's farm relief stand was predominant among the issues.

Herbert Hoover will meet President Coolidge today, probably will confer with him later at the White House, and plans to continue revising his Labor speech to be made in Newark, N. J., next week.

Governor Smith continued his rest program today in preparation for the start of his two weeks campaign tour Sunday night. He was described as being in excellent physical condition.

Senator Charles Curtis said the Republican majority in the Maine election forecast "an overwhelming Republican victory in the national election.

Georgia primary elections attracted interest today. There are many Democratic contests between Smith and anti-Smith candidates.

Dr. Henry Quincy Alexander of North Carolina, was selected as vice presidential candidate on the Labor ticket.

John J. Raskob announced plans for an active campaign in Maine, indicating speakers might be sent into the state by the national committee.

An accounting filed in the house of representatives showed the Democratic receipts from June 1 to Sept. 1 to be $681,295 and the disbursements, $460,479.

THE OCEAN BARRIERS

The subject that has had the greatest amount of newspaper publicity for the past year, is that of crossing through the air the tremendous ocean barriers which nature placed on the intercourse of the United States with foreign countries.

Thousands of aviators are dreaming of how they can cross the oceans by air, and trying to devise new plans for obviating the difficulties and dangers of such flights.

No subject seems to have fascinated the American people so much for the past year, as that of the experiences of these daring adventurers. We are all anxious for their success, we mourn the loss of the brave ones who have failed.

The ocean barriers hedging in the United States have had a tremendous effect on our development. Most countries live close to powerful neighbors, who at any time might march across their frontiers and attack them with great armies and destroy their cities. This has profoundly affected their psychology and has led to deep lying hates and rancors.

The American people have been spared all that. We are protected by these vast oceans, so that attack on us becomes extremely difficult and dangerous. But this great obstacle has had disadvantages as well as advantages. It has interfered with trade, and discouraged useful relations with foreign lands. The aviators are trying to break down these barriers which have done us both good and harm, and their aim is to make transportation by air across the oceans quick, easy and safe. Aviation progress may bring some new threat of military attack by air, yet that is a very remote thing. Anything that draws the nations closer together reduces the chance of wars. promotes the spread of knowledge, and encourages business relations.

FORTUNATE MEN

What is the most fortunate group of men you can think of, off-hand?

There are plenty of possible answers; but we would say that the men who are now going to the Antarctic on Commander Richard E. Byrd's ship. The City of New York, are the luckiest men we know of.

We don't mean by that that they're lucky to be engaging in a great adventure—although that, if you have the right sort of temperament, is a great stroke of fortune.

They are lucky beyond all the rest of us for the simple reason that they are privileged to follow a great leader who can call forth every bit of loyalty and devotion and courage their hearts can produce.

The accounts of Byrd's departure from his crew were significant. After making a brief speech, telling the men that their families would be looked after in their absence and that they need not worry about troubles at home, the commander went about the ship taking each man by the hand calling him by name and giving him some little personal message. Then, as he went ashore, the old ship rang with the cheers of his crew.

All of that was fairly simple, of course. Yet, between the lines of the news dispatches that described it, we can read, easily enough a tale of the most intense loyalty and affection given Byrd by his followers. No matter what mishaps or dangers these men may find down in the frostbound solitudes at the bottom of the world, it may be surmised that they will be sustained by the most complete confidence in their leader.

And it is precisely that—the privilege of following someone to whom you can unreservedly submit—that is one of the greatest privileges life can offer.

Few of us are born to be leaders. It is our destiny to follow, lies in finding the proper leader. We have incalculable capabilities within us if only someone will call them forth. But mostly we fail. We never find the man who can draw from us the last drop of fidelity, endurance and sacrifice. Our potentialities are wasted.

Byrd's men are lucky. They have found their leader. The ordinary mortal—you and I and the rest of us—cannot hope for a greater boon. In no other way can we hope to fulfil our possi-

The Summer Has Gone

THE summer
Has gone
But I've spent
An hour
Partaking the
Breath of a
Gorgeous, bright
Flower,
And although for a
Moment it stayed,
Then was gone
I know that its
Memory's bound
To live on;
Just for a moment
I saw the
Blue skies,
Just for a moment
They filled up
My eyes
And then they were
Gone, but I know
That some day
They'll come back
Just as happy,
As laughing and gay;
Just for a moment
Old summer has
Stayed,
And just for a moment
A boy I have
Played,
But, memories! Drive
Them away! I say
No!—
It takes more than Fall
And it takes more
Than snow—

And what we mean to say
Is,
If you live all the
Best of your life
As it comes
You'll not forget
Skies or how
Honeybees hum;
And summer will
Stay through
The winter of life
If you'll learn
To smile at
The trouble and strife;
Summer has gone,
But say, do you know
It always returns
With the melting
Of snow!

Love's Ecstasy
by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl working in New York as a secretary, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Aleda is living with Marise de Rense and the latter's young sophisticated sister, Goldie. Through jealousy, Goldie creates a break between Aleda and Gary. W. B. Lingard, employer of Aleda and Gary, after years of search meets Marise, sweetheart of his youth. Eavesdropping, Goldie learns that Marise is not her sister—but her mother! She demands an explanation and Marise pours out the story of her tragic early marriage to a convict who has since died. Goldie leaves home. Aleda visits her parents in the country and meets Gary. Love blooms anew. Gary sails for Italy on a business trip. Later, Lingard is forced to make a hurried trip to Paris and takes Aleda along as secretary. His niece, the Countess Dellamanca, acting as chaperone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LII.

THE boat-train that runs from Harve to Paris moved slowly out of its big shed.

At the window of a first-class compartment (there are three grades of travel on the French railroads) sat Aleda. She was athrill with joy and excitement—filled with tremendous zest. This was the France that she had read about!

Children in black overalls or smocks, their little hands outstretched for pennies (one cent was quite a windfall for them!) ran merrily alongside the moving train.

Old women—hatless, in ancient woolen shawls and endless petticoats—supported huge baskets of oranges. Below the windows, with much gesticulation, they peddled their wares.

The train gathered speed. Aleda removed her hat, leaned back comfortably to survey the scene.

How entirely different was this land from her own United States!

The picturesque small farms, red-roofed, with innumerable tiny orchards, and cabbage patches so little that they were no bigger than an ordinary dining-table! How thoroughly was every scrap of France under cultivation!

Women in wooden shoes—just like the picture of the Angelus! were working in the fields alongside the men. Enormous horses pulled heavy, two-wheeled carts. There were exquisite old chateaux, set in lovely smiling landscape, and along the country roads, workmen were pedalling to and from their labors on bicycles.

The Countess Dellamanca, surrounded by dressing-cases, smelling salts eau-de-cologne, traveling pillows, soon was on the seat opposite Aleda, her eyes closed.

It had been slightly stormy just before their landing, and the niece of Aleda's employer felt "indisposed."

With difficulty. Aleda kept back little excited murmurs. How delightfully quaint and unexpected was this Normandy!

The Countess opened her eyes, reached for a gold-stoppered bottle, and put it delicately to her nostrils.

"I always think France so smelly!" whiffed she.

But Aleda was in no mood to listen to complainings. She was a female Columbus in new worlds, watching an old civilization enthusiastically!

"See the fishermen with the hand-poles! Oh! that must surely be the river Seine!" she exclaimed, unable to keep silent, her gaze on the reed-fringed stream below the railroad tracks. "The men look like statues—as though they'd been there since the French revolution!"

The Countess made a dainty moue, as though such common creatures were beneath her comment! "Why worry about the bourgeoisie?"

A smiling conductor promenaded the corridor. In French he cried: "Third luncheon is served."

The Countess forgot her maldemer, and rose immediately. Briskly she said: "They have excellent food on these trains, and a glass of champagne will set me up."

She led the way through the violently swaying coaches to the little tables set under the long windows, each bearing its bottles of vintage.

Beaming waiters darted hither and yon. A contagious cheeriness emanates from French railroad servants, especially when in proximity to the good American dollar! There was exuberance, too, among the passengers—like children let loose from school on holiday—much popping of corks, and rattle of glasses.

"They drive their trains much too fast," said the Countess, "though I will say there aren't half so many accidents now, as just after the war! THEN it was a perfect scandal! NOW we're comparatively safe! Hi, garcon!"—she twisted her long body around, beckoning imperiously to a waiter—" a half bottle of 1914 Delbec!"

That revived her. She became quite pleasantly patronizing to Aleda, whose eager eyes drank in the unaccustomed scene most pleasurably, and who lent a scant ear to the Countess's talk.

Then she caught Gary Chester's name. She flushed a little.

"Such a charming fellow! My uncle thinks the world of his ability! He's on quite an important mission down in Italy. Have you ever met him?" the Countess asked.

Aleda nodded, trying to seem careless and indifferent.

About her meeting with Gary, how much did this sharp-eyed, sharp-voiced woman really know?

"Gary Chester has very frequently been my escort," remarked William B. Lingard's niece complacently.

The train glided into Paris. Blue-bloused, garlic-breathing porters streamed into the coaches, hurling luggage at each other through the windows, laughing good-naturedly, gesticulating, chattering like monkeys, eternally seeking their beloved "pour boire" (which means, "to drink" or tip, pronounced "teep")!

Tiny little taxi-cabs flew, fast as fire-engines, in and out the railroad station, with red-checked and black-bearded drivers at the wheel.

And all was merriment and bustle and extraordinary confusion over baggage and the customs—which fuss is so essentially French!

William B. Lingard got quick service. Soon he and his niece and secretary were careening in the best French taxi manner towards the Ritz.

According to the cable she had sent to Italy just one week ago, Gary might be at the hotel, waiting for them?

Her heart mounted, suffocatingly . . .

"OLD IRONSIDES"

James Cruze's "Old Ironsides" at the Metropolitan theater tonight might unhesitatingly be acclaimed as America's greatest motion picture.

For this stupendous Paramount film is not only an epic American photoplay but is an enduring record of the bravery and loyalty of our own forefathers. All the courage, the patriotism and the heroism of our first American settlers and sailors are graphically depicted in the picture.

The direction of James Cruze who also gave us "The Covered Wagon," is a notable achievement. The original story, by Laurence Stallings, author of "What Price Glory" and "The Big Parade," and the adaptation by Harry Carr and Walter Woods are masterpieces. The acting of a superlative cast, Jace Beery George Bancroft Charles Farrell and Johnnie Walker appear so natural that it adds much to the sense of vivid reality which the picture creates.

POLITICAL BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Volumes of Special Interest Are Added To Circleville Library.

Six new books, just added to the Public Library, are of special interest just now. They are:

Hapgood & Moskowitz's "Up from the City Streets," a frankly political biography that has the qualities of straightforwardness and sincerity.

Will Irwin's "Herbert Hoover; a reminiscent biography"--though it is a "political" biography and frankly eulogistic, it gives an authorative account of Herbert Hoover's activities before, during and after the war.

Frank Richardson Kent's "The Democratic Party." The purpose of this book is to present a connected narrative of the Democratic party from its beginning.

William Starr Myers' "The Republican Party," told by the professor of politics at Princeton University, is more partisan than Kent's "The Democratic Party," but provides the general reader with a history of the party.

Oscar W. Underwood's "Drifting Sands of Party Politics" is a timely resume of the important legislative measures of Congress between the adminstrations of Cleveland and Coolidge.

Robert Watson Winston, in his "Andrew Johnson, Plebeian and Patriot," goes back to an earlier period in pohtical history and, for the first time, gives justice to the most misunderstood of our presidents.

More new books just received at the Public Library:

"THE CABALA"—by Thornton Wilder. An earlier book by the author of the season's most talked about novel, "The Bridge of San Luis Rei."

"LAWRENCE AND THE ARABIAN ADVENTURE"—by Robert Graves. A survey of the man and his achievements which gives personal details omitted in Lawrence's own account of the Arabian campaign as given in "The Revolt in the Desert."

"MANNERS, AMERICAN ETIQUETTE"—by Helen Hathaway. A commonsense, rather informal book on etiquette, designs to be an aid to tactful and unself-conscious deportment.

"MY LIFE"—by Isadore Duncan. As far as it is possible she has put her personality into these pages, throwing the radiance of her imagination over her life as an artist and woman.

"STRANGE INTERLUDE" —A play, by Eugene O'Neill, the most significant dramatic work of the year.

"TRADER HORN, VOL. 2"—"Harold the Webbed; or the Young Vykings," being Volume two of the Life and Works of Trader Horn." Those who read and enjoyed the first volume now have the opportunity to pursue a little further a fascinating acquaintance.

Retail stores showed increase in trade for the month of July, 1928, over the same month in 1927.

THE OCEAN BARRIERS

The subject that has had the greatest amount of newspaper publicity for the past year, is that of crossing through the air the tremendous ocean barriers which nature placed on the intercourse of the United States with foreign countries.

Thousands of aviators are dreaming of how they can cross the oceans by air, and trying to devise new plans for obviating the difficulties and dangers of such flights.

No subject seems to have fascinated the American people so much for the past year, as that of the experiences of these daring adventurers. We are all anxious for their success, we mourn the loss of the brave ones who have failed.

The ocean barriers hedging in the United States have had a tremendous effect on our development. Most countries live close to powerful neighbors, who at any time might march across their frontiers and attack them with great armies and destroy their cities. This has profoundly affected their psychology and has led to deep lying hates and rancors.

The American people have been spared all that. We are protected by these vast oceans, so that attack on us becomes extremely difficult and dangerous. But this great obstacle has had disadvantages as well as advantages. It has interfered with trade, and discouraged useful relations with foreign lands. The aviators are trying to break down these barriers which have done us both good and harm, and their aim is to make transportation by air across the oceans quick, easy and safe. Aviation progress may bring some new threat of military attack by air, yet that is a very remote thing. Anything that draws the nations closer together reduces the chance of wars, promotes the spread of knowledge, and encourages business relations.

FORTUNATE MEN

What is the most fortunate group of men you can think of, off-hand?

There are plenty of possible answers; but we would say that the men who are now going to the Antarctic on Commander Richard E. Byrd's ship, The City of New York, are the luckiest men we know of.

We don't mean by that that they're lucky to be engaging in a great adventure—although that, if you have the right sort of temperament, is a great stroke of fortune.

They are lucky beyond all the rest of us for the simple reason that they are privileged to follow a great leader who can call forth every bit of loyalty and devotion and courage their hearts can produce.

The accounts of Byrd's departure from his crew were significant. After making a brief speech, telling the men that their families would be looked after in their absence and that they need not worry about troubles at home, the commander went about the ship taking each man by the hand, calling him by name and giving him some little personal message. Then, as he went ashore, the old ship rang with the cheers of his crew.

All of that was farly simple, of course. Yet, between the lines of the news dispatches that described it, we can read, easily enough a tale of the most intense loyalty and affection given Byrd by his followers. No matter what mishaps or dangers these men may find down in the frostbound solitudes at the bottom of the world, it may be surmised that they will be sustained by the most complete confidence in their leader.

And it is precisely that—the privilege of following someone to whom you can unreservedly submit—that is one of the greatest privileges lofe can offer.

Few of us are born to be leaders. It is our destiny to follow, lies in finding the proper leader. We have incalculable capabilities within us if only someone will call them forth. But mostly we fail. We never find the man who can draw from us the last drop of fidelity, endurance and sacrifice. Our potentialities are wasted.

Byrd's men are lucky. They have found their leader. The ordinary mortal—you and I and the rest of us—cannot hope for a greater boon. In no other way can we hope to fulfill our possi-

The Summer Has Gone

THE summer
Has gone
But I've spent
An hour
Partaking the
Breath of a
Gorgeous, bright
Flower,
And although for a
Moment it stayed,
Then was gone
I know that its
Memory's bound
To live on;
Just for a moment
I saw the
Blue skies,
Just for a moment
They filled up
My eyes
And then they were
Gone, but I know
That some day
They'll come back
Just as happy,
As laughing and gay;
Just for a moment
Old summer has
Stayed,
And just for a moment
A boy I have
Played,
But, memories! Drive
Them away! I say
No!—
It takes more than Fall
And it takes more
Than snow—

And what we mean to say
Is,
If you live all the
Best of your life
As it comes
You'll not forget
Skies or how
Honeybees hum;
And summer will
Stay through
The winter of life
If you'll learn
To smile at
The trouble and strife;
Summer has gone,
But say, do you know
It always returns
With the melting
Of snow!

"BON VOYAGE"

Love's Ecstasy
by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl working in New York as a secretary, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Aleda is living with Marise de Rense and the latter's young sophisticated sister, Goldie. Through jealousy, Goldie creates a break between Aleda and Gary. W. B. Lingard, employer of Aleda and Gary, after years of search meets Marise, sweetheart of his youth. Eavesdropping, Goldie learns that Marise is not her sister—but her mother! She demands an explanation and Marise pours out the story of her tragic early marriage to a convict who has since died. Goldie leaves home. Aleda visits her parents in the country and meets Gary. Love blooms anew. Gary sails for Italy on a business trip. Later, Lingard is forced to make a hurried trip to Paris and takes Aleda along as secretary. His niece, the Countess Dellamanca, acting as chaperone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LII.

THE boat-train that runs from Harve to Paris moved slowly out of its big shed.

At the window of a first-class compartment (there are three grades of travel on the French railroads) sat Aleda. She was athrill with joy and excitement—filled with tremendous zest. This was the France that she had read about!

Children in black overalls or smocks, their little hands outstretched for pennies (one cent was quite a windfall for them!) ran merrily alongside the moving train.

Old women—hatless, in ancient woolen shawls and endless petticoats—supported huge baskets of oranges. Below the windows, with much gesticulation, they peddled their wares.

The train gathered speed. Aleda removed her hat, leaned back comfortably to survey the scene.

How entirely different was this land from her own United States!

The picturesque small farms, red-roofed, with innumerable tiny orchards, and cabbage patches so little that they were no bigger than an ordinary dining-table! How thoroughly was every scrap of France under cultivation!

Women in wooden shoes—just like the picture of the Angelus! were working in the fields alongside the men. Enormous horses pulled heavy, two-wheeled carts. There were exquisite old chateaux, set in lovely smiling landscape, and along the country roads, workmen were pedalling to and from their labors on bicycles.

The Countess Dellamanca, surrounded by dressing-cases, smelling salts, eau-de-cologne, traveling pillows, soon was on the seat opposite Aleda, her eyes closed.

It had been slightly stormy just before their landing, and the niece of Aleda's employer felt "indisposed."

With difficulty, Aleda kept back little excited murmurs. How delightfully quaint and unexpected was this Normandy!

The Countess opened her eyes, reached for a gold-stoppered bottle, and put it delicately to her nostrils.

"I always think France so smelly!" whiffed she.

But Aleda was in no mood to listen to complainings. She was a female Columbus in new worlds, watching an old civilization enthusiastically!

"See the fishermen with the hand-poles! Oh! that must surely be the river Seine!" she exclaimed, unable to keep silent, her gaze on the reed-fringed stream below the railroad tracks. "The men look like statues—as though they'd been there since the French revolution!"

The Countess made a dainty moue, as though such common creatures were beneath her comment! "Why worry about the bourgeoisie?"

A smiling conductor promenaded the corridor. In French he cried: "Third luncheon is served."

The Countess forgot her malde-mer, and rose immediately. Briskly she said: "They have excellent food on these trains, and a glass of champagne will set me up."

She led the way through the violently swaying coaches to the little tables set under the long windows, each bearing its bottles of vintage.

Beaming waiters darted hither and yon. A contagious cheeriness emanates from French railroad servants, especially when in proximity to the good American dollar! There was exuberance, too, among the passengers—like children let loose from school on holiday—much popping of corks, and rattle of glasses.

"They drive their trains much too fast," said the Countess, "though I will say there aren't half so many accidents now, as just after the war! THEN it was a perfect scandal! NOW we're comparatively safe! Hi, garcon!" —she twisted her long body around, beckoning imperiously to a waiter—" a half bottle of 1914 Delbec!"

That revived her. She became quite pleasantly patronizing to Aleda, whose eager eyes drank in the unaccustomed scene most pleasurably, and who lent a scant ear to the Countess's talk.

Then she caught Gary Chester's name. She flushed a little.

"Such a charming fellow! My uncle thinks the world of his ability! He's on quite an important mission down in Italy. Have you ever met him?" the Countess asked.

Aleda nodded, trying to seem careless and indifferent.

About her meeting with Gary, how much did this sharp-eyed, sharp-voiced woman really know?

"Gary Chester has very frequently been my escort," remarked William B. Lingard's niece complacently.

The train glided into Paris. Blue-bloused, garlic-breathing porters streamed into the coaches, hurling luggage at each other through the windows, laughing good-naturedly, gesticulating, chattering like monkeys, eternally seeking their beloved "pour boire" (which means, "to drink" or tip, pronounced "teep")!

Tiny little taxi-cabs flew, fast as fire-engines, in and out the railroad station, with red-cheeked and black-bearded drivers at the wheel.

And all was merriment and bustle and extraordinary confusion over baggage and the customs—which fuss is so essentially French!

William B. Lingard got quick service. Soon he and his niece and secretary were careening in the best French taxi manner towards the Ritz.

KINGSTON PUTS OFF BOND ISSUE

Water Works and Sewage System To Come Up At Later Date

Kingston has decided to drop he question of a bond issue for water works and sewage system until a later date.

On the advice of a number of citizens of the village, the mayor and village council deferred taking action that would put the queston on the ballot this fall, because of its possible effect on other issues which must be voted upon in November.

The two issues that are already facing the people are for the schools and for street lighting They are simply renewals of former bond issues and are not a new expense to the taxpayers, but the interested citizens feel that with another issue before them, the people might become confused to the detriment of one of the two important issues already on the ballot.

The villagers have not lost sight of the necessity for water works and sewage system, but plan to bring it before the voters at the municipal election a year hence.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR FOR MRS. WALLACE

The Misses Gladys and Iola Wentworth and Miss Maxine Stevenson honored Mrs. Ralph Wallace, a recent bride with a dinner-bridge and shower combined, Tuesday night at the Wentworth residence on W. Union-st. At the door, the guests were given their tallies, which directed them to the tables where they were served the two course dinner.

White cathedral candles in crystal candle sticks stood in the middle of each table. A yellow tulle bow was tied around each taper, and on the candles that shed their glow from the mantles in the room. The color scheme of yellow and white was further carried out in the bright goldenrod and marigolds decorating the house for the occasion.

Yellow ribbon was woven in a spider web effect through the downstairs rooms, and up the stairs and down again. Mrs. Wallace was asked to follow this maze of ribbon to the end, where she found an array of attractive and valuable wedding presents, the gifts of the guests at the dinner.

Two bridge prizes were awarded for high scores. These went to Miss Helen Hitler and Miss Mary Walters.

Assisting the three hostesses were their mothers. Mrs. Grace Wentworth and Mrs. H. G. Stevenson. Miss Laura Martin and Mrs. D. H. Patterson.
